

Message to Organizations

Dear Reader,

Your organization may be interested in having a cancer patient and pharmacist/author teach a workshop that provides evidence on how long-term survivors win the war against cancer by uniting the best of conventional and complementary medical modalities. It is my belief that exceptional recovery studies worldwide, objectively explored, have a significant role to play in the future of healthcare in our society and hold genuine promise. I believe there is nothing quite like my published back-to-wellness strategies that reveals how some patients given a grim diagnosis, have returned to health, living many years after a "terminal diagnosis. " I believe an interactive workshop on exactly what to do, how to do it and why these long-term cancer survivors' strategies can possibly help is long over-due.

Long-term survivors state that Quiet Miracles is the only material which outlines the application of highly specific, step-by-step healing strategies that can easily be incorporated with conventional medicine, are easy to understand, and extremely simple to apply. Indeed, I believe that the Quiet Miracles "Back to Wellness" Program can quite possibly provide a "second chance at life, " for it is a prescription coupled with conventional medical modalities (I undertook both chemotherapy and radiation) so powerful, it led to my own remarkable healing event. The Quiet Miracles workshops are my way of helping the many, who are fighting and suffering from cancer--or virtually any life-threatening illness. As the American public becomes more educated about complementary and cross-cultural medical therapies, there is a growing need for reliable information about such modalities, how they are best used with conventional therapies and what research exists to validate their use. By integrating knowledge from many sources, the entire art and science of medicine will benefit, as will the human race. How long-term survivors win the battle against cancer truly is a universal need.

Sadly, the pace of cancer has quickened, and its scope has expanded. Moreover, traditional and complementary methods of treating the disease have become integrated and somewhat blurred. To succeed in this new health care age, people diagnosed with cancer and virtually any life-threatening illness, need to know what's happening across a broad spectrum of the medical industry. And that is what my workshop covers. Plainly stated, I am looking for appropriately enthusiastic organizations to spearhead my mission to offer this information to those in need. To contact me about a public or private Quiet Miracles workshop on how long-term survivors defied all scientific odds, please do not hesitate to call me at 763-519-0592.

Regards,
Sidney H. Levinsohn, Pharmacist

P.S. The Quiet Miracles Workshop is open to patients and professionals. It has been approved for 9 contact hours of continuing education credits for RNs, LPNs, LVNs, HPs, and Therapists.
